

LANDSLIDE RISK MITIGATION TRAINING FOR LSGD OFFICIALS

(Jointly organised by KILA- GHS- KSDMA)

A REPORT

Online Training

23rd June 2021

Introduction & Background

Kerala is a state highly vulnerable to landslides, with all of its districts except Alappuzha prone to landslide risk. GeoHazards Society (GHS) along with its partner GeoHazards International (GHI) had conducted a landslide study in 2018 with funding support from Munich Re, and a report has been submitted to Kerala State Disaster Management Authority (KSDMA). Later in 2020, GHI had been engaged by the World Bank and Government of Kerala for Building Regulatory Capacity Assessment (BRCA) project which recommended the need for building capacities in the engineering staff of the local bodies as they lack in-house experts on hazards and disaster resilience. As a continuation of these efforts, GHI and GHS is associating with Kerala Institute for Local Administration (KILA), the training and research institute of Kerala Government along with KSDMA to jointly organise a webinar for engineers of local bodies on landslide risk mitigation.

The event began at 10.30 am on 23rd June 2021 with the Program Coordinator Ms. Neha welcoming the participating engineers and the officials from KSDMA, LSGD, GeoHazards Team and KILA. Dr. Sekhar, Member Secretary, KSDMA delivered the introductory address and appealed that human should learn to coexist with the natural phenomena like earthquakes and landslides which are the usual course evolution of our planet. But at the same time, necessary measures should be taken to minimise loss of life and property by building awareness through such trainings. The Chief Engineer LSGD Sri. Jonson, appreciated the efforts of KILA and KSDMA and the technical partner GeoHazards Society in organising this webinar within short notice and welcomed more such technical sessions for LSGD officials. Sri. Joy Elamon, the Director General of KILA appreciated the participation of the LSGD engineers and the elected representatives of the local bodies in this landslide mitigation training, which is very relevant as Kerala has witnessed heavy rain triggered landslides in recent years. He assured that this is just a beginning to a series of technical trainings to build disaster resilience capacities of the engineering staff of the local bodies. This inaugural session was followed by the technical presentations by the resource persons of GeoHazards team. The participation of more than 630 LSGD officials for the training in the Zoom platform with an additional 200 plus live viewers in You Tube and Facebook was deeply appreciable and displayed the significance of the training topics.

The first session “Reducing Landslide Risk” was handled by Dr. Hari Kumar, Regional Coordinator GHI and President, GHS. With his more than three decades of experience in disaster management, he steered the participants through evolution of the DM cycle and the importance of preparedness and prevention. The presentation with suitable images of national and international locations illustrated how occurrences of earlier landslides can be spotted during construction site inspection and the geographic and human induced reasons that trigger landslides.

The presentation quoted examples of Munnar and Cheruthoni to illustrate how disruption of slopes can lead to landslides of not engineered well. Remedial options for landslide mitigation like earth works, erosion control, retaining walls were discussed but avoidance of landslides was the best option suggested. This could be achieved through bringing code references in bylaws, developing hazards maps of 1:5000 scale, suitable regulations for slope modifications in our growing hill towns, site approval by geologist verification, drainage planning etc and appoint geotechnical engineers at local body level.

The second presentation by Sri. Sarun Savith, a faculty of Geography with Sree Sankara University, covered the scientific aspects of landslides incidents in India and Kerala and the reasons that trigger the same. The Western Ghats region is vulnerable to landslides even before human settlements happened there. The vulnerabilities of the hillsides and the basics of what landslides are was illustrated. He went ahead explaining the various parts of a landslide and the different types with pictorial illustrations. The presentation further explained how the various human activities contribute to landslide formation and the preventive measures to be adopted for risk reduction.

The two technical sessions were followed by case study presentations by Dr.Vineetha P, a faculty member of the Inter University Centre for Geo Spatial Information Science and Technology, University of Kerala. Five landslide incidents in Idukki, Malappuram and Wayanad in the last two decades were explained in detail. Photos and Google images of the landslide sites were shown before and after the incident to show the impact and the data from studies conducted in those sites were used to illustrate the causes that triggered these mishaps. The case studies helped the participants to connect the theory of the earlier presentations and made them realise that the landslides mostly were results of unscientific human behaviour. The importance of GIS and remote sensing in landslide studies were explained. She brought the participants attention towards the different types of maps like inventory maps, susceptibility maps, hazard zonation mapping which will help the engineers identify the level of risk prevailing in a proposed site.

All the three sessions kept the participants attentive and brought out very interesting questions during the concluding Q-A session. The queries ranged from how quarrying leads to landslides, why landslide occur in forests, to the need of geotechnical engineer, revision in building rules to regulate landslides and methods to maintain rain water recharge in hilly areas. All questions were well answered by the technical experts. There were also requests to KILA for conducting awareness program to general public regarding the consequences of unscientific construction by the experts in the field and similar training sessions on building rules.

The training coordinator Ms. Neha formally extended the vote of thanks to all participants which even included elected representatives from local bodies apart from LSGD engineers and to all the technical speakers for a very enlightening and useful training session. The event concluded by 1.30 pm.

The program was also screened live on KILA's You Tube and Facebook channels and on KSDMA's Facebook channel. It is available on the following link <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9CL7YKZQPts>

ANNEXURE III: QUESTIONS AND COMMENTS ON ZOOM

- | Sl No | Questions/ Comments   |
|-------|---|
| 1     | There is an ambiguity prevailing regarding the issue of land development permit from the local bodies. The rule books says the issue of land development permit should only be done after securing an NOC from Mining and Geology department but practically the Mining and Geology demands building as well as land development permit before they issue the excavation as well as transit pass. My question is that would it be a good practice to issue land development permit based just on the analysis of general civil engineer without a specialist geologist recommendation?  |
| 2     | Another question regarding the hazard maps published by the SDMA Kerala is whether the local bodies can go for a specialist advice(DDMA or Town planning dept. ) in case of moderate and low land slide prone areas since there are no restrictions for building construction in such area?   |
| 3     | The class is about the need of protecting nature and environment, need of scientific analysis for constructing building in hilly areas. But we engineers are compelled to give development permit to remove earth of 50 cent or 1 acre simply for constructing a 300m <sup>2</sup> residential building or 500 m <sup>2</sup> commercial building. Why our KPBR/KMBR cannot help us to avoid the removal of such large quantity for simple works. Final instruction is also regarding the checking of levels of removed earth by LSG after they got permission from geology...We are asking can't we can regulate the quantity of earth cutting in each site as per including rule in KPBR. |
| 4     | Development permit come highly disturbing the entire area.min8 m cutting and 800m <sup>3</sup> cutting.also pressure from local earth mafia.so after recommendation from geology only building permit given.so law should change  |
| 5     | unless these are included in the building rules, the local bodies will not be able to control unscientific construction.  |
| 6     | Scientific norms for issue of development permit shall be developed and the procedure for issue of permit shall also be modified.   |
| 7     | land development permit (for rock cutting) nu panchayat il vannapo mining and geology department lek NOC k refer cheydu. but mining and geology department nte NOC avar tharan govt nirdheshichillanu paranj reply thannu. rock cutting may lead to geological aspects. as far as possible lsgd ae mar geological aspects koode nokit kodukamenn paranje geology department. else private geotechnical engineer or geologist nte report thedavunnadanenn geology department reply thannu..  |
| 8     | Are land slide susceptibility maps made available to every local bodies now ? They be integrated to the building statutes prevailing now for implementation.  |

- 9 Sir, Can you please explain why there is cracks about 5 to 10 cm in width for a long distance on earth surface. Is this an indication of land slides over the area.
- 10 Rules to be framed zonewise .
- 11 does tube well and bore well also cause soil piping
- 12 Such zones have to be fixed based on the environmental sensitiveness
- 13 മഴ കുഴിയേക്കാൾ വെള്ളം കെട്ടി നിൽക്കുന്നത്
നെൽകൃഷി .....എന്നാണ് മഴ കുഴിയായിട്ടുള്ള
വ്യത്യാസം
- 14 what are the methods, how we can maintain rain water recharge in hilly areas..?
- 15 Zoning regulations are not available in gramapanchayaths
- 16 Government of India has implemented Integrated Water Shed Management System in every regions. These programs are mostly implemented in districts like Idukki. In this program we are making check dams and many systems to retain water in that particular areas. These constructions shall have impact on landslides. There are contradictions in implementing every programs. Some experts say storing water is important. But some other experts say these have adverse effects.
- 17 An awareness program to general public regarding the consequences of unscientific construction shall be arranged by the experts in the field.
- 18 Request to KILA to arrange class on building rules...
- 19 so geology department il geologist nte site inspection um avarde NOC kittan vendi aavashyamaya nadapadikal sweekarikendathan. (especially for rock cutting.) Idukki dist il nilavil geology department il ninnum rock/earth cutting nu NOC tharunnilla. permit nu vendi alkar nadakunnad matram Mecham. kindly look into this matter. here in our panchayat 3 files with same issues are pending.
